This workshop will encompass a deep dive into one case to build skills in integrating findings from the Working Model of the Child Interview and the Crowell Procedure in assessing infant-parent relationships. Suitable for people who have done both trainings and who have experience in using the procedures.

This training is in person and incorporates group learning from experienced participants.

Workshop will include:

- brief review of the procedures
- analysis and synthesis of information
- formulation and recommendations

- feedback and communication of findings (report writing for different contexts)
- setting therapeutic goals

Places are limited.
